

Prior to 2003 by InitiallyNO, signed with former name Nerissa Ockerby

Prior to 2003, all visual art by Initially No, signed Nerissa Ockerby (birthname, changed in 2006).

Most of this collection has already sold, though there are some works left, that can be purchased through The Painter And The Writer Gallery. These works focused on youthful recreations such as dance parties and professional dancing, scuba diving, mythology, the page and the pen. Initially NO studied acting and worked as an actor, in her 20s enjoying the theatrical community.

Only a few works from 1998, in this collection, most are 2001-2003, when she was able to access a studio to practice her visual art.

In 1990, after finishing year 12, Initially NO was accepted into fine arts painting at Ballarat and Bundoorra, but chose to do a Bachelor of Arts at Monash (Clayton) and commute to Caulfield to do a unit in fine arts (painting), but midyear got a job in a touring theatre group, and deferred studies, which were later completed in 1997, while still working in and studying performing arts. Artwork between 1991 and 1997, was mostly given away, destroyed or lost. Creations made while talking on the phone often amused colleagues at workplaces, where Initially NO worked gifting to art colleagues whom liked them. Initially NO also made sculptures from found objects and old stockings at this time. The works were much like theatrical props, such the artwork titled 'Meat' (no photos available). At the time Initially NO has become persuaded to be vegetarian. She spent many hours walking home, learning to speed walk, getting adrenalin kicks in the last hour or so of the walk to increase speed.

Indoctrinated from youth into the idea of less is more, Initially NO, didn't really eat enough, so not to be 'greedy', and didn't sleep enough, so not to be 'lazy'. She was burning herself out. In 1998 Initially NO, decided she wanted to become better at script writing, and was persuaded by another person whom said they didn't sleep at all, that she had to learn how to do this. Of course it was madness inducing, and given her childhood with having to protect a suicidal mother as well as pressure to earn money while still practicing creative arts, the lack of sleep caused disastrous hallucinations and false beliefs and a suicide attempt.

Initially NO travelled around Australia sleeping very little, walking and sketching a little. It didn't occur to anyone to tell her that sleep deprivation causes not only hallucinations and delusions but also brain damage. If that had been said, Initially NO would've understood why sleep was essential sooner in her life and a full nights uninterrupted sleep was necessary. Understanding that she had to eat a certain amount of food was there, because she noticed that she fainted if she didn't, and wanted to avoid that, still, she would forget to eat, and was vegetarian, which comes with nutrition challenges.

In 2001, she got accepted into Swinburne Tafe, fine arts (painting), but couldn't afford the fees, she was also accepted into a studio in Prahran area that suited her budget. Her prolific work, at this time, reflected the happiness she now had, and she sold many works of art, including ceramics, though, she still thought sleeping too much was 'lazy'. However, when she got accepted into a fine arts Professional Writing and Editing course at RMIT, in 2003, she made a conscious effort to sleep enough so she didn't fall asleep in class and gave up the idea of ever doing acting again, though still was interested in performing and joined a band, 'Lunadenta' playing trumpet and singing. She had composed songs on guitar since 1999, but was getting more understanding of how to do this, on both instruments, as well as do home recording and mixing of her songs.

In 2004, she asked everyone to call her Initially NO, and signed all her artwork with this name, and completed the diploma of Professional Writing and Editing in 2005, with high distinctions.
